

Ferhan Bulca

Director, Board of Director
Maple Leaf Angels

Ferhan Bulca is an entrepreneur and intrapreneur who has built, grown, and exited four businesses, generating over $1B in annual revenue. With a Ph.D. from McGill University, his career has focused on commercializing advanced space and medical technologies. Early on, he worked on a USA-Canada joint venture for a laser communications satellite constellation and Mars robotics missions. He later led a global team to acquire and commercialize a San Francisco startup's technology, launched a new business line at a Toronto-based B2B IT firm, and co-founded a company to commercialize cancer research software, which he sold to Elekta. At Elekta, he launched two more business lines before retiring in mid-2024. He now serves as a board director at Maple Leaf Angels, an active investor, and a startup advisor.
